

THE COLUMBIAN, BLOOMSBURG, SATURDAY, JULY 7, 1866.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

WHAT a Scotchman said to the editor of the Republican—"You're pale, man."

WILLIAM L. MADDOCK & Co., dealers in fine groceries, No. 115 South Third Street (opposite the Girard Bank), Philadelphia.

OUR neighbor of the Republican has a position for indulging in quotations from Scripture. Shakespeare, whom he is also fond of quoting, must have had our contemporary in his mind's eye when he penned the following:

"The Devil can scripture for his purpose quote; An evil soul producing holy witness Is like a villain with a smiling face, A goodly apple, but rotten at the core!"

A RASPBERRY festival, for the benefit of the German Reformed Church, will be given four evenings of next week, commencing on Wednesday. These commendable entertainments are very popular here, and the pleasure afforded in contributing to a worthy object is enhanced by the pleasant form in which inducements are offered.

If you want an economical and comfortable smoke, take a piece of sponge, three quarters of an inch square (in a dry state), make a small hole through the centre, then steep it in water until it becomes distended, squeeze the water out, and put the stem of the pipe through the hole until the bowl comes in contact with the centre of the sponge. Charge the pipe and fill the sponge with cold water; then commence smoking, and it will be found that a saving of twenty-five per cent. in tobacco is effected with an improvement in the flavor.

We have received from the Secretary of the Northeastern School of Design the prospectus of that institution. The objects of the school cannot but commend themselves to every one, and they should receive a hearty support. The first term of the school has just closed, and the progress shown by the pupils at the annual exhibition was very marked. Its directors, twenty-three in number, have contributed one hundred dollars each to furnish it with models, casts, rooms, teachers, and lecturers. The studies comprise drawing in outline, practical geometry, and elementary perspective for the primary class, for the secondary class more advanced exercises in drawing and shading; for the advance class still further progression, and for professional classes, landscape painting, wood engraving, figure painting, and lithography. Fee of the session of five months, fourteen dollars a session. Arrangements can nearly always be made for the reception of free students. For further information address E. P. Darling, Esq., Secretary, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY FOR JULY.—"The case of George Dedlow" is a sketch full of whimsical, psychological speculation. Mr. Longfellow produces a second sonnet on "Translating Dante," and the "Passages from Hawthorne's Note-Book" are continued, in Charles Read's story of "Griffith Gaunt." The paper on "Indian Medicine" has a peculiar interest, and it is a most valuable contribution to the history of demonology. Goldwin Smith's "Englishmen in Normandy" presents novel phases of a much-travelled, much-be-written region. Bayard Taylor's sketch of Rutherford, the great German orientalist and poet, is timely and attractive. Major Henry S. Burroughs, in the "Siege of Knoxville," recounts the history of that event. "The Great Doctor" is the first part of one of those stories of Western life which Alice Cary writes so well. Scientific readers will be charmed with the article of Professor Agassiz on the geology of the Amazon Valley. Bryant gives a fine poem under the title "The Death of Slavery." The remaining articles in the number are: "Released," a poem, by Mrs. Whitney; "To J. B.," a poem, by J. R. Lowell; "A Bundle of Bones," by C. J. Sprague; "Aunt Judy," a graphic sketch of a negro character, by Dr. S. W. Palmer; Mrs. Stowe's "Chimney Corner" paper, and critical notices of "Evee Homo," Saxe's poems, "Fifteen Days," "Life of Silliman," etc. Ticknor and Fields, Publishers.
